Tell Me What You Want What You Really Really Want	10/11/22	10:00 AM	10:30 AM	This session is designed to assist organizations in giving employees a voice through "Stay Interviews." Employers will get tips on strategies to gather employee feedback to improve retention.	Basic	Talent Development Performance Management; Total Rewards Work-life Integration
From Idea to Implementation: Drew Charter School's Innovative Performance-Based Bonus Structure	10/11/22	10:00 AM	10:30 AM	Performance-based pay in education is not new (Springer, 2016). Over the years there have been numerous attempts at implementing such systems in schools, districts, and states across the country. However, these attempts have been met with varying levels of success. These initiatives have been subject to intense debate and some argue have even played a role in recent teacher unrest across the country. In this session, you will hear about Drew Charter School's process of implementing their performance-based bonus program as well as the successes, lessons learned, and future plans. Audience participation will be sought during an interactive discussion of how performance-based awards programs can be designed to emphasize assets rather than deficits. Safeguarding School District DEI Initiatives From Discrimination Challenges	10/11/22	10:30 AM	11:30 AM	School districts, like many employers, have developed and implemented policies and practices to make the workplace more diverse and inclusive. The U.S. Supreme Court is poised to issue a decision which will likely change the legality using race and gender to increase diversity and inclusion. It is important for personnel administrators and staff to stay up to date with and understand what the law allows regarding DEI plans. While the data and evidence bear out the benefits of a more diverse and inclusive workplace environment, this has not prevented "push back" and complaints from individuals challenging either the basis for a DEI policy and/or its implementation. Often employers battle misconceptions and misunderstandings of DEI initiatives by community members and even their own employees who may perceive DEI initiatives as unfair and a form of unlawful discrimination. This presentation, using a lecture and interactive format, will provide attendees with practical information and guidance on the current state of the law, how to ensure their school district's DEI initiatives are consistent with federal and state anti-discrimination laws and how to minimize the risks when enacting DEI plans. Take the "Labor" out of Labor Relations	10/11/22	10:30 AM	11:30 AM	Taking the "Labor" out of Labor Relations creates a culture of ongoing trust and collaboration between school districts and bargaining agents. This session will provide participants with a framework that includes negotiation timelines, agendas, norms, and predictable outcomes to ratify negotiated agreements. Come and learn how we strategically moved from needing an outside facilitator to lead our negotiations, to sharing facilitation between the district and bargaining agents collaboratively. It is possible to look forward to negotiations!	Intermediate	Total Rewards Compensation & Benefits
Is it time to update and redesign your teacher mentoring program?	10/11/22	10:30 AM	11:30 AM	Summary of session: In an era where teacher shortages are haunting, recruiting, hiring and retaining teachers is tremendously critical. Learn how one suburban district redesigned their teacher mentoring program, developing a more holistic and comprehensive support system to foster the growth of new-to-the profession teachers and new-to-the district teachers. Specifically, this session will focus on Ankeny's story, sharing details of how they have recently redesigned their mentoring program to create a multi-year structure, strategically outlining and designing the roles of the mentor teacher, instructional coach, administrator and the PLC. Ankeny will walk you through the design of their mentoring program and share resources you can take back to your district.	Intermediate	Talent Development Orientation & Onboarding

When will you be good enough? You Are.	10/11/22	10:30 AM	11:00 AM	This presentation engages participants in the "Why?" behind improvement efforts - for both individuals and organizations. Grounded in the notion of santosha, or contentment, the idea of "I'll be happy when..." is examined. Self-improvement efforts are healthier and more sustainable when they begin with a premise of accepting and loving who we are right now, instead of believing that happiness will come only through the attainment of new goals. Charting a New Path for Recruitment & Retention	10/11/22	1:45 PM	2:45 PM	Every day a student has an effective teacher in the classroom, is a day when learning takes place! From 65% to over 90% retention rates for novice teachers, hear how we have changed the course in recruiting, retaining and molding teachers while impacting student learning. Over the last five years, we have implemented two programs that focus on the recruitment and retention of instructional personnel. To begin with, we are growing our own as we provide opportunities for our paraprofessionals to move from being a classroom assistant to being a classroom teacher. Focusing on employees that are already a part of the Putnam County School District family benefits not only the employee, but the students, families and community as well. In addition, we created a Novice Teacher Mentoring program which cultivates, champions and supports teachers in their first three years of teaching. Through these two programs, we have successfully increased retention rates and decreased instructional vacancies which means our students have effective teachers in front of them providing learning opportunities which will lead to their success in college, career, and life. NASDTEC Clearinghouse	10/11/22	2:15 PM	2:45 PM	On average, about 6,000 educators each year have adverse actions taken against their certificate or license for serious misconduct that deems them unsafe to be in the classroom. Most educator misconduct cases are prosecuted in administrative hearings, not a criminal court. If the educator is not arrested or fingerprinted, there will be no record of the misconduct in a state or federal criminal background check. Unfortunately, it is not uncommon for an educator who had adverse action taken against a certificate in one state to apply for a position (certified, classified, or volunteer) in another state or even apply for admission to another educator preparation program. For over 33 years, the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC) has helped keep students safe by maintaining the NASDTEC Educator Identification Clearinghouse (Clearinghouse). The Ed ID Clearinghouse is a secure, searchable national database that provides an immediate alert regarding individuals who have had their professional educator license or certificate annulled, denied, suspended, revoked, or otherwise invalidated. By including the Ed ID Clearinghouse in its background screening, the school district and educator preparation provider can make fully informed placement decisions and reinforce their organization's risk management plan. How to Take Advantage of the New U. S. Department of Labor's Registered Apprenticeship in Teaching	10/11/22	3:15 PM	4:15 PM	This presentation, presented by David Donaldson of the National Center for Grow Your Own, will provide districts with background information on registered apprenticeships in teaching and considerations to make in their design and launch. Donaldson will provide context by sharing how he approached this work along with Grow Your Own programs in Tennessee. He will include information about the financial sustainability of these programs and what he is seeing from across the country. Donaldson was the lead author on the application to the U.S. Department of Labor to establish the occupation of a K-12 teacher as eligible for apprenticeship. He also launched GYO programs amongst 65 districts and 14 EPPs to allow 670+ aspiring educators to become a teacher for free and get paid to do so while he served as Chief of Human Capital for the Tennessee Department of Education. The Four Questions Successful HR Leaders Should Be Asking Every Day	10/12/22	10:45 AM	11:45 AM	Winston Churchill advised to "never let a good crisis go to waste." While COVID has had devastating global impact, it has also highlighted the critical role human capital plays in education. In order to capitalize on this increased attention, there are four questions successful HR leaders should be asking (and answering) every day. This session will examine each of these questions and provide participants with: a) a framework for effectively communicating with educators about the functions of HR, b) a tool for prioritizing the work of HR, c) best practices for maximizing the impact of HR, and d) a scorecard for measuring the impact of HR upon student outcomes. De-Stressing Schools: From Conflict to Collaboration	10/12/22	10:45 AM	11:45 AM	Studies estimate leaders spend 20-40 percent of their day managing conflict. The impact of dissension includes knee-jerk resistance to change, toxic parent conferences, stressed-out administrators, and a widening gap in our polarized country. Conversely, conflict avoidance deters schools from confronting institutional substantive issues such as institutional racism and inequities. Personnel administrators can lead staff in reconceptualizing conflict and learning a new skill set, while reshaping school culture. This interactive workshop will explore leadership characteristics and strategies that build "conflict agility," the ability to transform conflict into a productive opportunity to solve school community problems and enhance collaboration. Fortifying trust, examining differences without discord, and applying design thinking protocols will be considered, drawing from peace studies, organizational psychology, business and educational research. The session will be centered around a participative case study.	Basic	Talent Development Performance Management; Talent Development Training & Development
Putting the Pieces Together?	10/12/22	10:45 AM	11:45 AM	Many school districts face the challenge of disconnect and misalignment of positions and position titles across departments and campuses. This session is designed to share the journey of a large suburban school district in Texas that is working to put all of the pieces together. After many years as one of the nation's fastest growing districts, it was time to stop and take stock of every position and how it aligns with the current needs of the district. There were so many questions! Are the right pieces in place? Do the pieces fit together? Do we need different pieces? Have we lost some of the pieces? Join us for an opportunity of shared learning! Listening to Our Stories: BIPOC Teachers Experiences with Unique Workplace Phenomenon – Recruitment & Retention	10/12/22	1:15 PM	2:45 PM	As diversity has increased in the U.S., people of color comprise 21% of the workforce; diversity amongst teachers in K-12 public schools is virtually non-existent (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2015). With approximately 80% of school teachers identifying as white many minority students spend their entire K-12 education without ever coming into contact with a teacher of color (National Center for Education Statistics, n.d.). The inability for organizations to recruit and retain teachers of color is a major deficiency and as such it has become a democratic imperative to examine possible factors that may contribute to the lack of teacher diversity. With the decreasing number of teachers of color, BIPOC teachers today frequently find themselves as one of a few racially and/or ethnically diverse members of their institution. Previous researchers have hypothesized that the lack of teacher diversity may be a result of the same factors that affect Caucasian teachers, such as a lack of pay, respect, and workload. For the purpose of this session the problem of a lack of teacher diversity will be examined in light of racial microaggressions as experienced by BIPOC teachers in K-12 institutions. Through thoughtful interactions and discussions this session seeks to establish a need for change; change in the way we examine the problem of a lack of teacher diversity, the narratives with which we hold to be true and representative, and the way in which we prepare, recruit, and retain teachers and leaders, in order to dismantle the structures that disadvantage minority teachers, if we hope to serve as agents of change. One District's Journey to Ensure Substitute Classroom Coverage	10/12/22	3:00 PM	4:00 PM	Every Human Resources professional needs to continuously define, measure, analyze, and improve the way work is accomplished to enhance student, employee, and organizational outcomes. One area of focus is staffing to ensure that a qualified teacher or substitute is available for every classroom every day. Some of the issues that Human Resources personnel must consider are: school staffing schedules have become more complex, high schools, in particular, have long struggled to ensure substitute classroom coverage in period or block schedules, and old methods have been inadequate to match absent employees with available substitutes. Learn how a technologically progressive school district is supporting student instruction by optimizing substitute classroom coverage across complex high school staff schedules. Listening to Our Stories: BIPOC Teachers Experiences with Unique Workplace Phenomenon-Recruitment & Retention	10/13/22	9:00 AM	10:30 AM	As diversity has increased in the U.S., people of color comprise 21% of the workforce; diversity amongst teachers in K-12 public schools is virtually non-existent (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2015). With approximately 80% of schoolteachers identifying as white many minority students spend their entire K-12 education without ever coming into contact with a teacher of color (National Center for Education Statistics, n.d.). The inability for organizations to recruit and retain teachers of color is a major deficiency and as such it has become a democratic imperative to examine possible factors that may contribute to the lack of teacher diversity. With the decreasing number of teachers of color, BIPOC teachers today frequently find themselves as one of a few racially and/or ethnically diverse members of their institution. Previous researchers have hypothesized that the lack of teacher diversity may be a result of the same factors that affect Caucasian teachers, such as a lack of pay, respect, and workload. For the purpose of this session the problem of a lack of teacher diversity will be examined in light of racial microaggressions as experienced by BIPOC teachers in K-12 institutions. Through thoughtful interactions and discussions this session seeks to establish a need for change; change in the way we examine the problem of a lack of teacher diversity, the narratives with which we hold to be true and representative, and the way in which we prepare, recruit, and retain teachers and leaders, in order to dismantle the structures that disadvantage minority teachers, if we hope to serve as agents of change. Building the Workforce Our Students Need: A Cultural and Mindset Paradigm Shift - Learnings from Year Two	10/13/22	9:00 AM	10:30 AM	"Hire the best." Best is often a culturally steeped translation of "the most educated, most experienced" applicants attracted to the posting. However, do those criteria result in the best hires for students in a given context? How do we identify the leaders we need to ensure we have equity-driven leadership throughout the organization? And how do we know we did? Participants will hear about the framework Highline is developing in practice, to think strategically about staffing for student-defined success. As a continuation of last year's session: Building the Workforce Our Students Need: A Cultural and Mindset Paradigm Shift, participants will hear about specific strategies piloted in the spring for administrative hiring including a data-driven approach and reflection.
